> CATERPILLARS AND WORMS .- Several weeks ago we mentioned that worms had appeared in different parts of the county attacking and destroying millet lucerne and grass, and young oats. They have now appeared in great numbers in the cotton fields, stripping the plants bare of leaves. They evidently came from the eggs of a bright vellow moth or butterfly that has been plentiful in these parts for the past two weeks. When these moths appear, farmers should light fires in the fields after nightfall, so that the meths, attracted by the light, would fly in the flames and be destroyed. Whether the worms will be an injury to the cotton remains to be seen.
